Uni students, faculty, and whomever it may concern,

2015-16 was Uni's 95th year enriching students lives. Although students and staff come and go, one thing remains and that is Uni's culture. There are so many things about Uni that are unique, and in this yearbook we tried to capture that. Uni's hallways, classrooms, and gyms are filled with students, but also items that go unnoticed, yet play a huge role in what Uni is and the education that it is providing. While students graduate each year, and teachers may retire, the core of what makes Uni "Uni" will never change. This yearbook is a time line of our year and what made it special for us. We hope you enjoy.

Yours, The Yearbook Editors and Staff.

Year in Review

Uni High is feeling the full effects of its' 2015 Financial Depression. Students are gaining the exact same education, but were asked to pay more for sports, classes, and donations. Uni's demand for money has affected everyone, however, this did not stop Uni students, teachers, and staff from striving to find the bright side and sharing laughter and good memories as the year progressed.

This year's highlights started with the Orientation Picnic where Uni members happily reunited with the optimism that Uni would continue to be a great place to learn and mature. A change in fundraising rules and pizza sales meant students had to be more creative in their club events and food choices. The successful fall play of Romeo and Juliet sparked this movement. Lots of love was in the air and with it, Uni clubs banded together to raise money for Habitat for Humanity, Pediatric Cancer Awareness, UFU, etc. The Uni community's participation continued with Uni students getting down at the dances, supporting the sports teams, being fiercely competitive in the all-school spirit assembly.

Two fun facts.
1. IHSA State Series refs are appointed by the IHSA, not the host school.
2. One's knowledge of soccer is inversely proportional to the amount of time they spend yelling at the ref.

Math House and Huo House are on the University's "impending destruction list." Within 12 to 18 months, the duct tape will be removed, thus allowing natural forces to cause their peaceful collapse.

SUBBIE RETREAT

"It was hot, but the Subbie Retreat was still fun. I also got to meet everyone."
—Kristine Wang

"The games were good, but I got pretty tired so I took breaks."
—Silas Jones

"The Subbie Retreat was a great way for the incoming subbies to get to know one another."
—Ms. Bandy

The greatly anticipated Subbie Retreat was finally upon the Class of 2020 and their subbie buddies. Despite the event being moved to Hessel Park due to fewer funds, as well as a whopping ninety-degree heat, this group managed to have one of the best retreats ever.

The different subbie groups first split up and engaged in small group games before convening for the classic "Honey if you Love Me", where everybody went down on their hands and knees to make the unmoving Mr. Buck smile. Next, the subbie buddies donned bandanas and everyone made good use of Hessel Park's seemingly endless grassy area in an all out game of capture the flag.

One of the highlights of the day was a huge game of "drip drip drop". Many subbies and subbie buddies ended up either a little wet or completely soaked, leading up to subbie buddy Albert Lee getting all the excess water dumped on him. The subbies then broke up into their groups again for the Subbie Olympics, which included the usual three-legged race, obstacle course, and a version of bedsheet volleyball with a giant beach ball. Team Fire won nearly everything, but nonetheless all of the subbies had a great time. There was still time for one last game: a giant tug-of-war. After Team Wind emerged victorious, the subbie buddies faced all 65 members of the 2020 class. Everyone came out of the retreat smiling and laughing. All in all, this was an opportunity to get to know everyone better and spend a day (out in the record heat) chilling and having fun.

LET'S DANCE

This year's dances at Uni were filled with lots of fun. None of the dances, with the exception of Howdy Hop, were held in the Uni first floor hallway due to new rules. One of these new rules prevented students from fund-raising, causing most of the dances to cost little to nothing and encouraged student attendance.

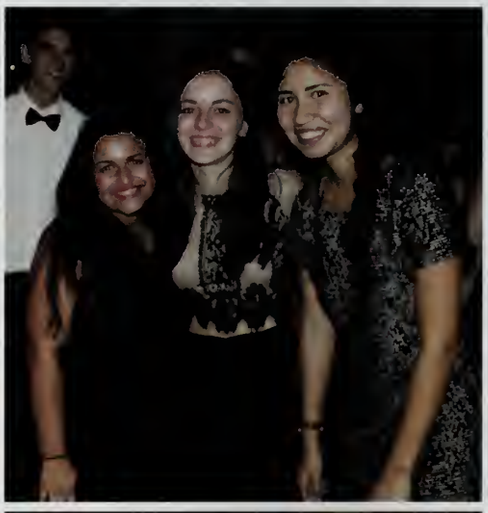
The first dance of the year was the annual Howdy Hop at the end of the first week of school. It was held by the senior class, as per usual, and provided students a fun opportunity to dance with their old friends and to make new ones.

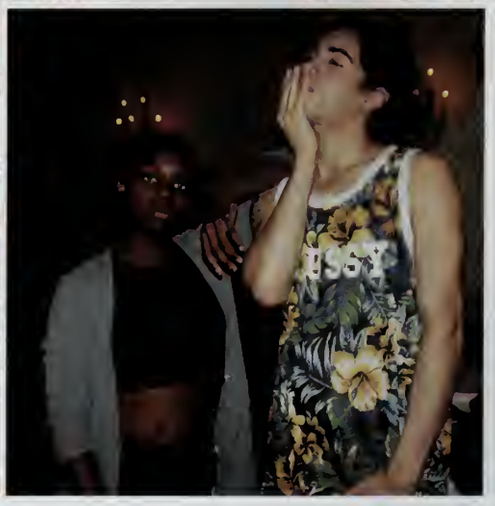
The first ever Uni "Homecoming" was held at the Savoy Recreation Center by the senior class to raise money for their senior trip. This dance featured homecoming "kings" and "queens" for each class that were voted on by their classmates.

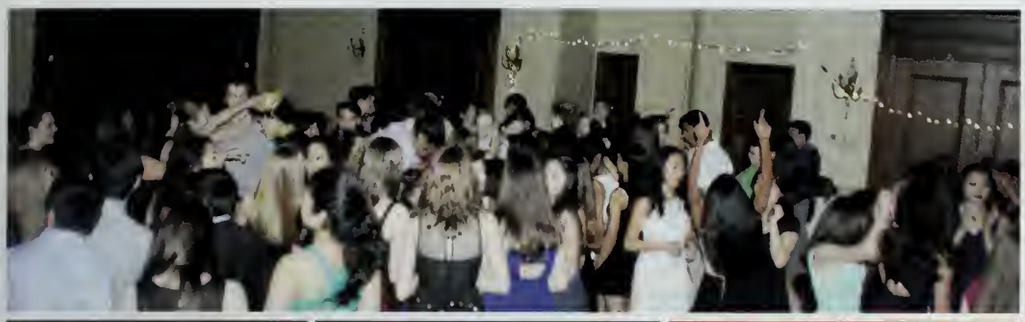
Later in the year the Winter Formal was held at the Champaign Country Club by the sophomore class. There were many lights and opportunities to take photos in a photo booth set up by the class reps.

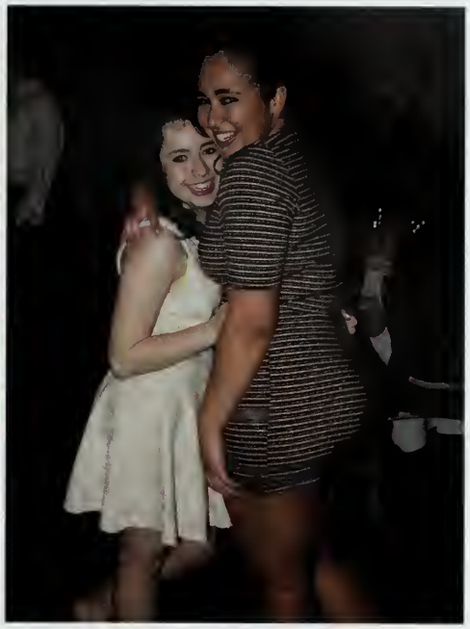
Vice Versa could not be sponsored by a class, so the Pediatric Cancer Awareness Club (PCAC) offered to sponsor it at the Champaign Country Club. It was an interesting dance because many students from other schools also attended. Although there was no explicit music allowed, there were cookies.

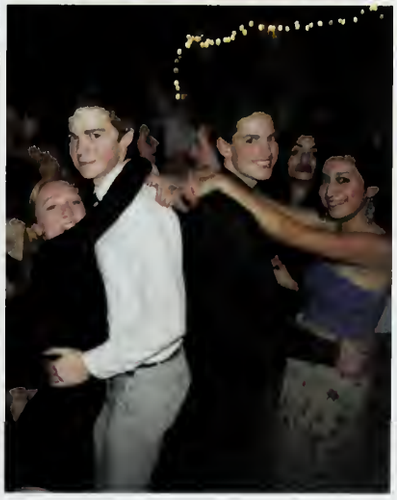
The dances at Uni were very eventful and well-planned, especially given that the financial problem forced the dance reps to be creative.

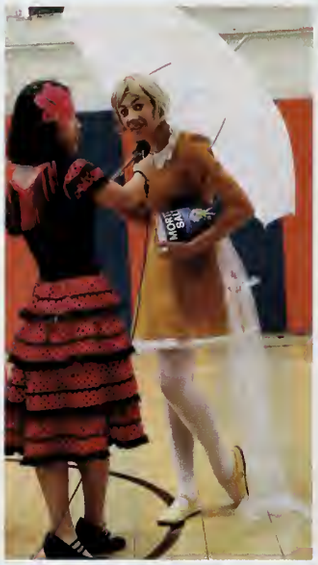












GRUMPY
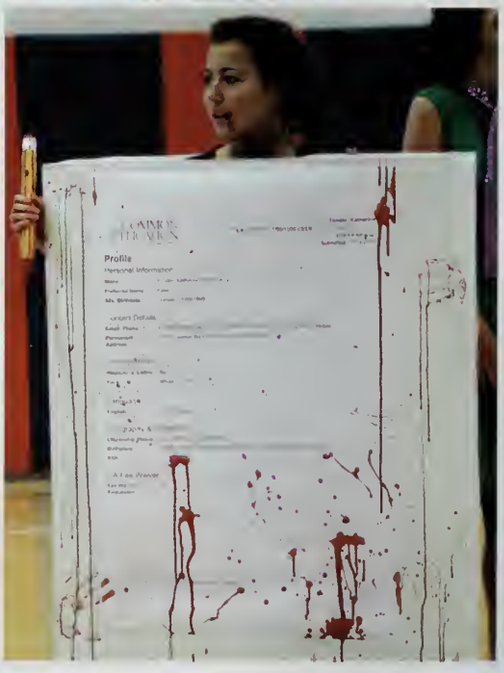
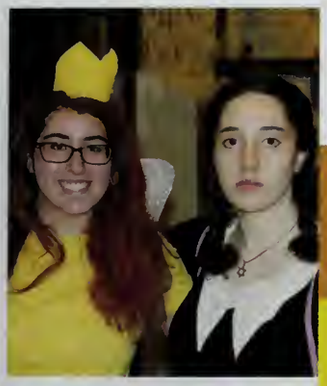
SNEEZY





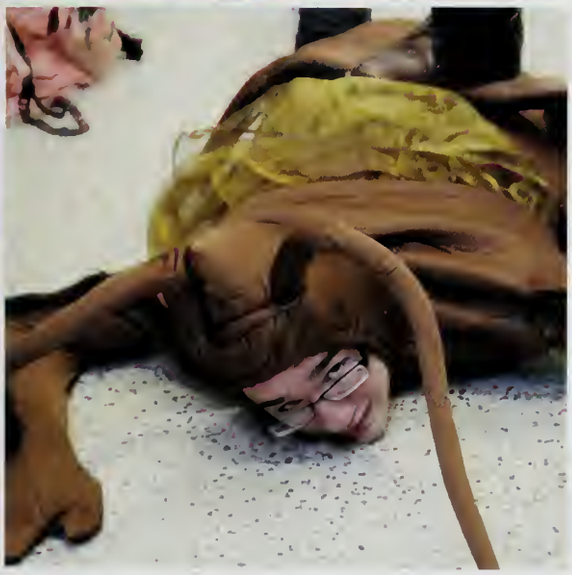
Sweet Tooth

Every Halloween at Uni, many students choose to dress up in creative costumes and this year was no different. The school was filled with well-known figures, both historical and in popular culture. The Uni crowd went wild as the StudCo reps threw candy at the throngs of students waiting in the bleachers.

Never had the annual Halloween contest featured as many interesting group costumes, including six freshman Pink Ladies from Grease, the characters from Inside Out and Big Hero 6, portrayed by sophomores and the Batman Squad created by a group of juniors. Solo costumes included animal costumes, such as a flamingo and a cockroach, as well as significant figures in history, including an Amelia Earhart outfit.

Crowd cheers either kept characters in longer or eliminated them from the competition. In the end, the winners were chosen as The Common Application (Katie Tender), Snow White and the Seven Dwarves (Panos Voulgaris and a group of senior girls), as well as Kim Possible and Ron Stoppable (Zina Dolan and Ezra Johnson). Donald Trump could have featured, but the politician chose to exit the "stupid" contest instead.

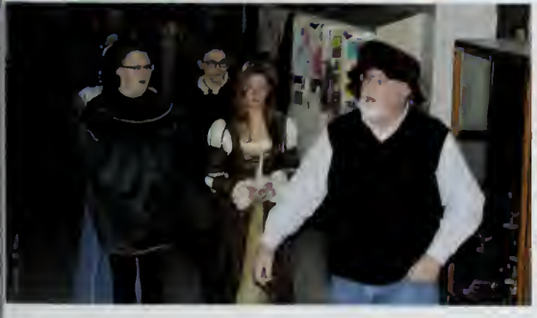
Some who dressed up instead chose to remain in the crowd and dive for falling candy while screaming themselves hoarse. All in all, it was a worthwhile event.

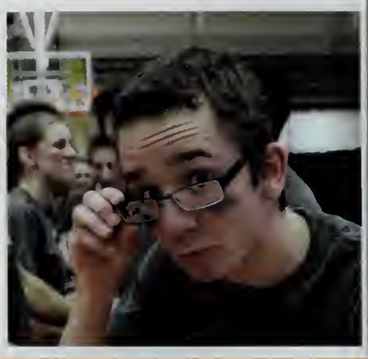


WINTER WONDERLAND

' Twas the day before Winter Break, and all through the school, not a creature was stirring... until the Madrigals started down the third floor hallway. As the Madrigals weaved their way through the school, the students slowly filtered out of their classrooms to follow the singers to Uni Gym. Once there, the Madrigals enchanted the crowd with new medieval melodies, and a solo featuring senior Berit Hudson-Rasmussen. The Renaissaance-themed performance gave way to a politcally-charged rendering of "The Gingerbread Man," this year, entitled "The Gingerbread Trump." Stories of Hillary, Jeb, Cruz, and Donald, sent the whole audience roaring. To follow up, Claire Dickerson led a group of juniors and seniors in singing the Spanish/English Christmas classic: "Feliz Navidad," and the faculty performed a soulful rendition of "We Wish You a Merry Winter Break."

Finally, everyone was able to swarm the food tables. Plates were stacked high with savory snacks, sandwiches, and desserts, provided by the Uni parents. Uni Gym began to empty as students finished eating and socializing, and after the finals and festivities, everyone was ready to settle in to a two-week vacation.





we've got spirit, YES WE DO

This year, Spirit Week was cut a bit short. There were only four days for students to participate because of Monday off from school that week. Despite this setback, they made the most of it. Everyone went all out for every dress up day, culminating with the Spirit Assembly on Friday.

The week kicked off in patriotic style with Holiday Day, where students dressed up as representatives of their favorite holiday, ranging from the 4th of July, to Christmas, to St. Patrick's day. Workout Wednesday was celebrated by donning athletic clothes, from the newest Adidas' tracksuits to old school gym attire. Thursday was the traditional Dynamic Duo Day, in which students teamed up with each other to create the best costumes or twin getups. Friday, as always, was Class Color Day, where each class expressed their spirit by wearing their respective class colors. This year subbies were orange, the freshmen were blue, the sophomores were red, the juniors were black, and the faculty was green. The seniors sported a bleak grey, but they rocked it going all out and showing their Class of 2016 spirit.

At the end of the day on Friday, the Spirit Assembly was held at Kenney Gym. It consisted of some of the classic activities such as the trivia obstacle course, the half court shoot off, a three-legged race, and the tug-of-war contest. But it also had a lot of new elements like the cheering contest, where each student section would try to cheer as loud as they could, and a dance off, where two students from each class would try to out dance the other classes.

It was a tough competition, each class bringing lots of skill in each event. But in the end, the senior Class of 2016 was victorious, officially winning their final Spirit Week Assembly.

AGORA DAYS

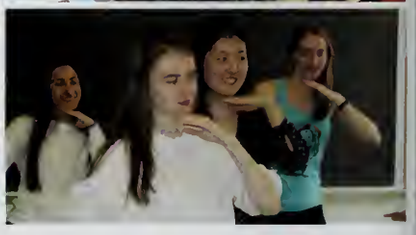
New changes may come about every year at Uni High, but there is one constant that students can always count on: Agora Days. Every February, the four-day week offers a unique opportunity for students, teachers, and parents alike to introduce others to their own personal interests. This year, students raced each other to online signups early in the semester, clamoring to add their names to rosters for classes like Rocket Science, Kenjetsu, Contra Dancing, and Fried Cookin'! Others made use of their mornings to volunteer their time at Bottenfield Elementary School, while a group of particularly devoted students made the trek down to Mississippi for the annual Habitat for Humanity trip. Those who stayed at home had no shortage of options. Some took part in athletic classes, from the real—Ultimate Frisbee—to the (recently) invented—Quidditch. Cooking classes were ever-popular, from the much sought-after Cake Decorating to Food Chemistry and Engineering in the third floor chem lab. But it wouldn't be Agora Days without the mandatory academic classes, and most students had no trouble finding ways to spend their precious time. Some fulfilled their requirements by Skyping with students from a South African high school every morning; others discussed the Iran Nuclear Deal; and the those looking for a challenge took on p-adic numbers with Mr. Russell.

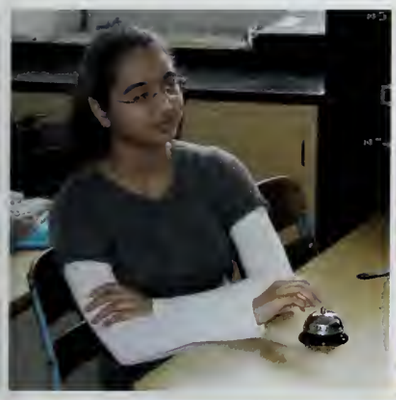
Habitat Trip

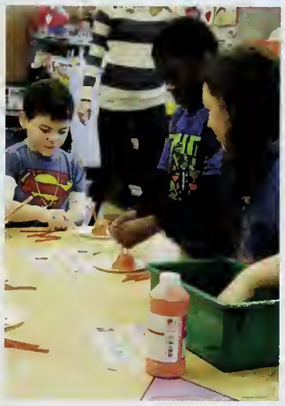
Habitat for Humanity made their annual trip down to Mississippi, working on build sites and hiking through the winter chill. A number of WILL radio interns also traveled with the team to record the experience and interview members of the Mississippi Delta community.

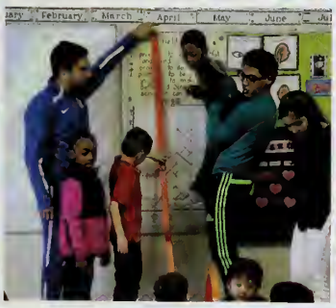
Bottenfield

A group of dedicated students offered their time to the classrooms of multiple grade levels at Bottenfield Elementary School this year. Uni High representatives conducted lessons and experiments in physics for the elementary students, helping along their classes with fun push-and-pull demonstrations and colorful props. The week culminated with a whole-room collaboration on a series of floor-spanning and wall-climbing ramps, constructed by high schoolers and grade school students alike. Of course that was everyone's favorite day!









Dancing

Uni Gym was home to a number of classes this year, from Kenjetsu to Contra Dancing. In Ballroom Dance, instructors Warren Buck and Kristi Bandy guided their students through step after step—not too up-close, but still personal!

CLUBBING @ UNI

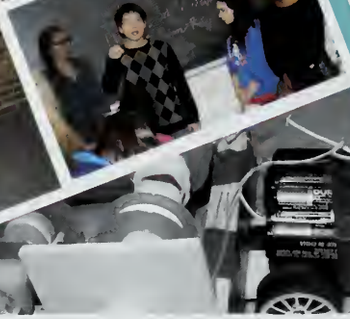
Uni has a large and diverse body of clubs and extracurricular opportunities open to its students. The following, largely student-run clubs, which have helped students participate in outreach as well as explore math, science, language, and journalism, have been especially influential.

SPRING/HABITAT CLUB

Every Friday during lunch, eager volunteers squeeze into room 210, collecting in the back and between desks to watch Grace, Marshall, Jack, Callie, Anne Marie, Isaac, Ms. Morford, and Mr. Sutton plan for the club's next highly-anticipated fund-raiser. Over at Spring, Omeed, Anna, Callie, James, Andrew and Maddie organize tutoring at local elementary schools, and plan their own events. Between yard cleanup, the dodge ball tournament, the Spring Banquet, and the bake-off, there's hardly a Uni student who hasn't participated in or been effected by the efforts of Habitat and Spring Club. And with all the work—tutoring and building homes--they've done during their two yearly trips to the delta, their efforts must be even more meaningful to the residents of Clarksdale, Mississippi.

SCIENCE OLYMPIAD TEAM

Clad in their weird-looking-bird-in-chem-goggles t-shirts, and led by Nicholas Liu and Victoria Kindretenko, the Uni Scioly team--including the newly-minted JV division-- took Parkland by storm yet again this year. The team programed video games, answered questions about oceanography, forensics, and fossils, and built home-made clocks. With a baffling number of new recruits this year, the veterans worked hard to maintain the relaxed but diligent and healthily competitive attitude which had defined the team in the past. The students studied, scribbled, and duct-taped their way to a second place at the Regional competition, earning a place at State for the third year in a row.

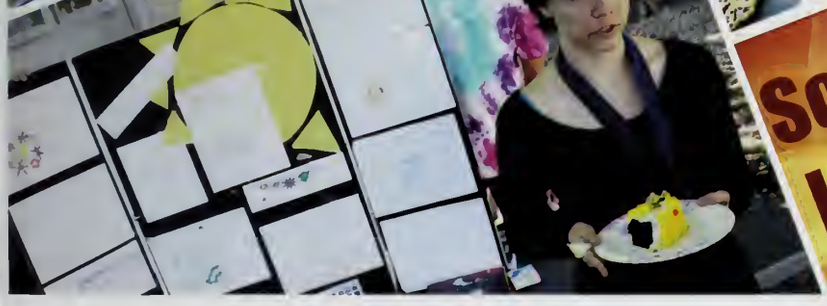


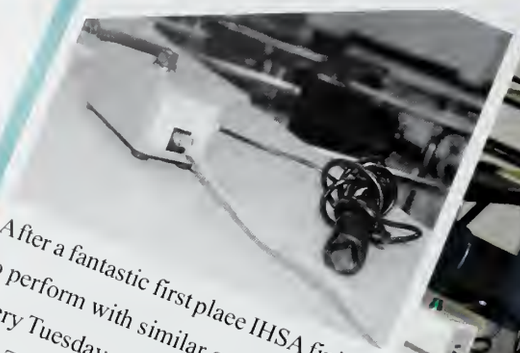
WILL INTERNS

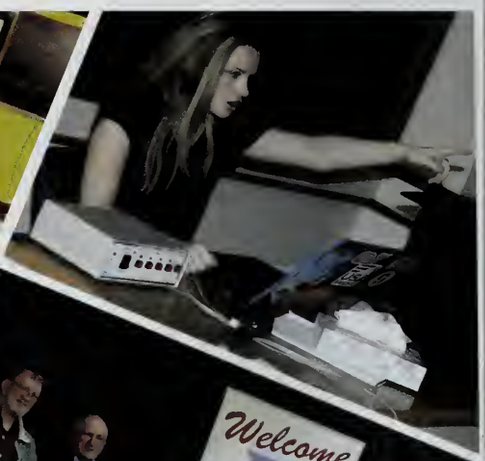
This year, half of Uni's young radio journalists teamed up with Habitat to chronicle the outreach and larger social climate in the Mississippi elta. Meanwhile, the SLAP (Small Local Agriculture Project) team has been nobly working to share the experiences of independent Central Illinois farmers. The Uni-WILL partnership, headed by Ms. Morford, has been helping students hone their journalism skills, and sharing the stories and history hidden in our community for years, making it one of Uni's most well established and hard-earned traditions. Students look forward to hearing their peers' voices over the radio waves, and to hearing stories they have to tell.

TREE CLUB

Tree club plans to save the world—or at least make up for Uni's comically inefficient heating system. They've cleaned parks, raised money for environmental charities, and hosted minimize-your-carbon-footprint competitions in a nobel effort to protect our environment. Their cornerstone accomplishment has been the installation of a one-kilowatt solar panel system, which they celebrated with an outdoor "solarbration" featured in the images below. Their goals for the future include expanding their solar panels, and working with the University of Illinois to improve our building's efficiency.







SCHOLASTIC BOWL

After a fantastic first place IHSA finish last year, the Scholastic Bowl team was ready to perform with similar gusto. The team began meeting early in the year, practicing every Tuesday and Thursday after school. Led by seniors Ben Schiffer, Justin Wang, Jack Zeiders, and Nicholas Liu, the group bulked up on their knowledge of subjects ranging from pop culture, to Greek mythology, to quantum mechanics. They answered hundreds of questions in quiz-bowl-style: frantically buzzing in with ever-correct solutions. The team had many new members this year, but most were quickly indoctrinated into the thread of the Scholastic Bowl creed: buzz now or die trying. What a motto.

FOOD PANTRY

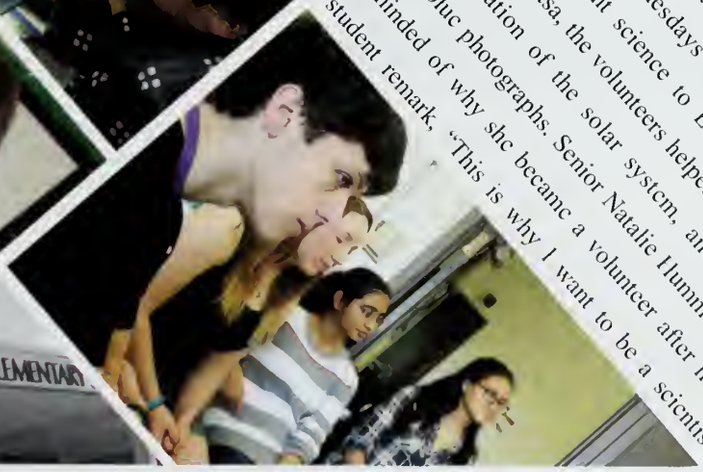
Packing food like it's nobody's business, this determined group of Uni students helped serve the Wesley Evening Food Pantry. Last year, the club supplied beans to eight hundred and fifty local households, and this year aimed to top even that. The group met every Thursday during lunch, being led by seniors Siena Roberts, Neil Tewksbury, and junior Carissa Hwu. When they weren't busy packaging beans, Food Pantry helped organize several popular food sales. The most prominent among these were the Thanksgiving Food Sale – a staple in Uni student life, featuring turkey, mashed potatoes, green beans, and delicious pies -- and the "Food You LOVE Sale," offering mouth-watering dishes like pizza, mac-n-cheese, and sizzlin' bacon.

CHESS TEAM

After a one-year hiatus, Chess Team made a reappearance this year, thanks to the hard work of several pioneering upperclassmen. The team met every Monday and Thursday after school, practicing their piece placement and opening strategies. Led by junior Anshul Adve and senior Justin Wang, Uni High was able to compete in several smaller matches, before moving on to State. Though they were scrambling to find players for the final tournament, the Chess Team placed first in the 1A division. With many interested subbies, hopes for the future of the Chess Team are high.

LANGUAGE CLUBS

From French Club to Latin Club, German Club to Chinese Club and Linguistics Club, 2016 saw a surge of language activities. The clubs filled the hallways with aromas of crepes and pretzels, and sounds of languages like Chinese and Assamese. These clubs hope to continue raising the school's awareness of its own diversity and interest in global cultures.

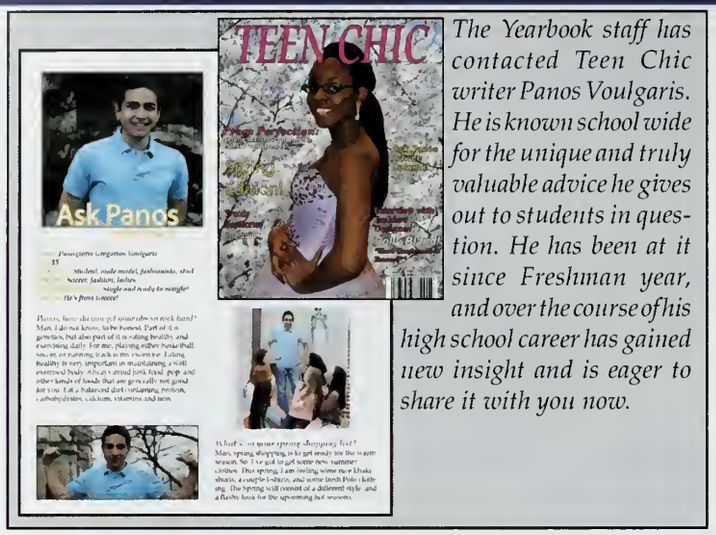


MLK VOLUNTEERS

Driving to Martin Luther King Jr. Elementary School and back during Wednesdays Uni Period, this group of Uni volunteers taught science to ESL students. Led by senior Iuliamna Taritsa, the volunteers helped the class build a scaled representation of the solar system, and create their own cyan-blue photographs. Senior Natalie Hummel says she was reminded of why she became a volunteer after hearing one student remark, "This is why I want to be a scientist!"

ASK PANOS*

& THE REST OF THE YEARBOOK CLASS



The Yearbook staff has contacted Teen Chic writer Panos Voulgaris. He is known school wide for the unique and truly valuable advice he gives out to students in question. He has been at it since Freshman year, and over the course of his high school career has gained new insight and is eager to share it with you now.

Q: Panos, when it comes time for romance, what is your go to place for food?

Panos: Well it depends on the time of day. For lunch, I would go to Zorbas just so she can get a taste of some of my country's food. I advise anyone going there, however, to keep the intake of garlic at a minimum....For a romantic dinner, I'd like my mother to cook some Greek food and serve us so she gets the full spiel of my country's food.

YB Staff: Go somewhere nice, but not too nice. Chili's or Buffalo Wild Wings are good options. Don't overdo it with something like Biaggi's, but don't go the cheap route and opt for McD's or DQ.

Q: I am a dapper dude who wants to get out and meet people, what can I do?

Panos: Being social is important to happiness. Go out and talk to the people, see if they can hit you up with something. Talk to your classmates and get some connections to help you find those ragers. Don't pull too hard though you dapper dude.

YB Staff: Go to random houses on the weekends. If you knock on enough doors, you're bound to find a party somewhere. It may be a random birthday party, but hey, you found one!

Q: I have PE and I get sweaty and disgusting after. How do I stay fresh for the rest of the day?

Panos: Shower because the benefits of taking a quick shower outweigh the grief and disgust you give to your classmates from your rancid smell. Or, just axe-bomb the crap out of your body if you are a dude.

YB Staff: Obviously, you're pushing yourself far too hard in PE if you become disgusting. Sandbag through the first three quarters, and put in some good work before the 5K so that you have a respectable time. Then, axe-bombing will be the answer.

Q: Why won't my boyfriend let me meet his mom?

Panos: Looks like he doesn't like you as much as you thought... just kidding. Talk to your boyfriend about it and see what kind of a response you get. But please make sure to talk before you do anything crazy.

YB Staff: Why are you complaining? Meeting the mom can be as much of a curse as it is a blessing. Might as well keep things between yourselves until you know that this is going to be a serious, long-term sort of deal, and that the mom may like you.

Q: What do you think of the new urinal dividers?

YB Staff: Since most of us are female, we don't really know...or care. Whatever makes you guys happy. But it sounds like that'd be a nice, needed improvement.

Q: Panos, now that you are graduating, what will people's lasting memory of you be at Uni?

Panos: Clean microwaves, clean offices, clean lounge, clean kitchen, clean floor, clean air conditioners. Fortunately for the staff, administrators, and students, I have been tardy my whole life here at Uni, so they get to operate on clean furniture and halls nowadays thanks to my tardy service (some have even offered me a job to come clean their houses as well!).

YB Staff: There's a lot of things we could say about Panos's impact on Uni, but at the same time, we want to preserve the integrity of his legacy at this fine establishment. Needless to say, he will be missed, by some.

HOROSCOPE

Aries ♈

This year, you will get embroiled in a dispute with an authority figure. A parent may keep you in the house over the weekend. Mr. Mitchell may assign way more than thirty minutes of homework per night, you may not see eye to eye with Doc Walk's new financial policy. Perhaps you'll start selling contraband pizza for your own profit and be confronted by Mike Adams. You may feel impulsive during these conflicts, and prone to blurting out random strings of insults, but you must learn to hold your emotions back. This summer will be a good time to practice self-restraint.

Taurus ♉

A brand new fitness regime may present itself in the coming year, either in PE or in a sport. You will find the change stressful and undesirable. In this case, it is best you rebel because others are feeling the same. Do your jumping jacks without jumping and stare intently at your coach as you slowly move your arms and nothing else. Sit down in the middle of your run and do not move, no matter how you are threatened. You will be surprised, but others will join you. Not used to leadership, you may find this unsettling, but it is important that you try your best to continue. Sometimes, laziness can overcome.

Gemini ♊

This month, your mind will be especially scattered as school lets out for summer. Beware of losing track of important objects or information that you might need the coming fall. While you may be glad to have an opportunity to change the awkward picture from subbie year, losing your prox won't be worth it. Speaking of subbie year, this summer will be a time to grow away from that. You may feel yourself developing in new and unexpected ways. You may upgrade from a zipper binder to a real backpack. You may start parting your hair on the other side, or get new shoes. Whatever it is, embrace the change.

Cancer ♋

It will be a long time before you see most of your school friends again (especially if you are a senior), and you may begin to feel lonely or lost. Do not despair. Instead, take the time to define yourself as an individual. Take a capoeira class, learn to make chimichangas. The world is your oyster, and eating it alone while watching Netflix doesn't have to be sad. The pearl, like a fortune cookie at a Chinese restaurant, will be your dessert. It will give you the sustenance to continue on your journey to self-enlightenment.

Leo ♌

This year will see many new gains in your own authority and leadership. Like stars that are now in reach, you will see many new opportunities arise and you may try to grab at anything and everything in sight. You may be shaken by the end of an important relationship, but don't let it get in the way of your excellence. After seeing all of the new clubs that were formed last year, you may decide to start your own. Don't be afraid to send a school-wide email to advertise. Thirsty for an audience, you may teach an Agora class. Try not to bite off more than you can chew though, for as the year progresses, you may be too booked-up to have time for last-minute opportunities.

Virgo ♍

Despite your tendency towards rational thought, you will notice a slight decrease in your need for a firm understanding of the world (approximately -14%). A seed of doubt may be planted in your mind-garden by Plato's philosophy of the mind, or a discussion of relativity in physics. Take advantage of this moment -- open up your mind to the mysteries of the universe. You might find yourself believing in more unconventional narratives. The flat world conspiracy? The JFK assassination? Dihydrogen monoxide poisoning? Flaunt your new world view. You may turn some heads, but you may also find a following in the process.

Libra ♎

You will soon find that a relationship with a friend or significant other is strained. You will want to keep the peace, and may bury your own feelings in order to make the relationship work. However, the significant other will be dumb and stubborn. It's best you dump them now. You will see them in the hallway every day and it will be painful, but not as painful as continuing to put up with their insensitivity. Your intense elemental passion for this person may make it difficult to split up (especially if they are a Leo), but be firm in saying what you think, even if it creates conflicts... or chair-throwing.

Scorpio ♏

Something will anger you soon, and you will try to hide your feelings. Because of your efforts to contain your emotions, you may feel that others do not understand you. However, you will be relieved to find someone with a similar outlook on life. In your anger, you will likely turn to this person. Beware, though-- they are most likely also a Scorpio and could be dangerous or have ulterior motives. Look out for hidden poisons, rat traps, requests for homework answers, and knives. Safe-proof the house, and pat down your new friend before you let down your guard.

Sagittarius ♐

The stars will align in your favor, and you will find yourself in a spot of good luck this year. You will have better grades than ever before, as you will miraculously guess right on numerous multiple choice questions. Spending less time studying (who needs that anymore?), you will find yourself with enough time to take up a new sport. In your first year with the team, you will be made varsity captain, and suddenly surrounded by those who adore your newfound skill. You will find success at every unexpected turn. Your team will probably win nationals. You might even get new uniforms..

Capricorn ♑

Intending to sit in on a club or team only briefly, your perfectionism and desire to control will make you feel the need to fix the organization's sorry management, sucking you into an important and time-consuming role. Suddenly thrust from the background to the foreground, you will discover some of your own character flaws. You are not always right, and, despite how hard this is to believe, sometimes other people have a point. Learning to concede will allow you to make the changes necessary to revamp not only the organization, but also your iffy people-skills.

Aquarius ♒

This year, you will go one step too far in trying to find an original space. Hipster may turn to oddball, so stick with neutral colors and be wary of hats that are way too long for your head. However, this could also be a time for inspiration. Your artistic senses will be heightened, and you may feel the impulse to design a case for Kachina dolls to be displayed in the Uni stairwell, or create a Youtube channel to show off your 30-second drawings. You may also find new passions in music, art, or literature. Mr. Bergandine may miss seeing your inquisitive face in class, but it may be time to give the humanities a spin.

Pisces ♓

You will find a hidden sixth sense emerging this year. Your intuitions will become realities at startling rates. Deja vu will become scarily frequent and accurate. Listen to your dreams, for they may have significance in the future. For example, if your dream appears in blue, expect a large amount of water in your future. It may come as rain, or it may be in some more sinister form, but it will be inevitable. Once you realize the truth of your visions, be prepared to act upon them. So if you suddenly have a vision of yourself as a teacher at Uni, consider getting some life tips from Mr. Leff.

ROMEO, O ROMEO

IN FAIR VERONA, WHERE WE LAY OUR SCENE, UNI HIGH THEATRE DELIVERS ONCE AGAIN.

It's a story line that we all know, but every performance brings a new take on it, and this year's stellar Fall Play cast made Shakespeare's Romeo & Juliet their own. The audience was swept up in the story of two noble families at odds in Verona, Italy, following teenagers Romeo and Juliet as they met and fell in love against the will of their parents. The relationship developed quickly, with the two promising to marry each other only the day after they first met.

Things quickly went sour when Juliet's cousin Tybalt demanded Romeo duel him to the death. Wanting to save his upcoming marriage, Mercutio stepped in for his best friend, but was killed in the battle; Romeo, in a rage, returned the favor by killing Tybalt himself and was banished from Verona for his crime.

In order to escape the marriage to Paris that her parents had planned for her, Juliet concocted a plan with Friar Lawrence to make herself appear dead, hoping to sneak her away so that she could finally live happily with Romeo. But Romeo, unaware of the ruse, learned of Juliet's death and immediately rushed to her tomb, where he killed Paris and then himself. Juliet awakened to find Romeo dead at her side and committed suicide herself without hesitation. The play ended with the two warring families finally making peace over the bodies of their children.

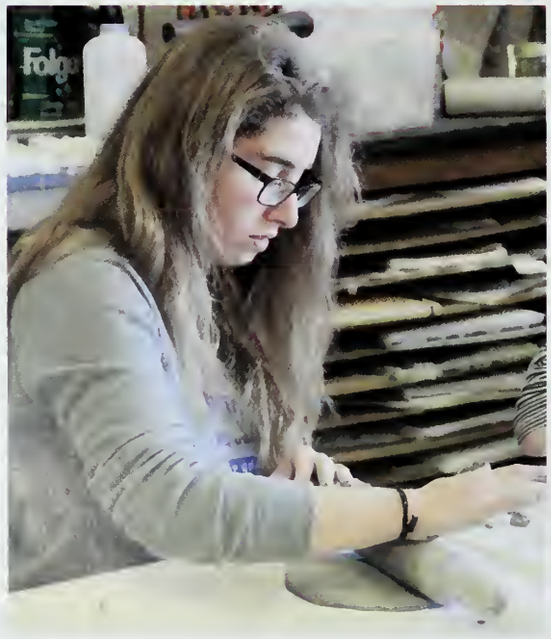
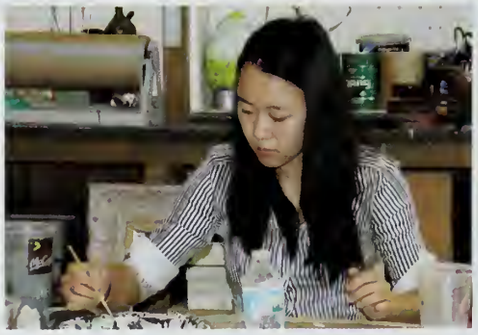
We made new friends within each cast and quickly became very close. We worked hard together to create something great! We weren't always sure our show was going to be a success and there were a lot of nerves. Despite the unsureness and insecurity, we put on a fun show that we were all able to be proud of.

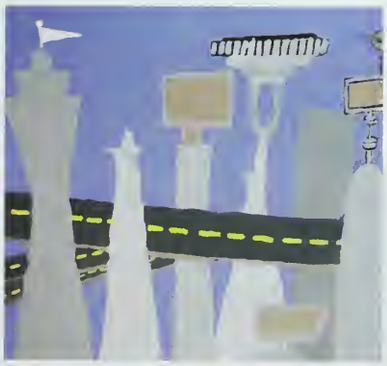
Madie Gardner
I would say that stud prod was a lot of fun this year. We had a very short amount of time to put the show together. It was a very challenging show to prepare, but we ended up putting on a great show.

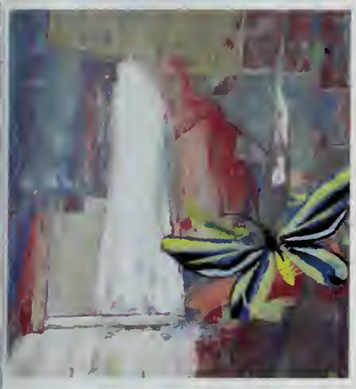
ARTS SMARTS

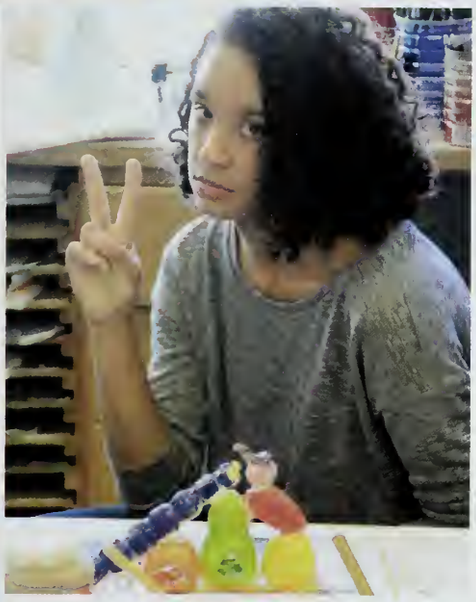
Who says Uni High students aren't as active in the arts? This year numerous students across all grade levels took classes from Interrelated Arts to Studio Art to 3-D Art; the subfreshman class made their annual contributions to the Insect Fear Film Festival; and student artwork was displayed in the third floor hallway for all to see and appreciate. At a school where academic classes demand so much of their students, Ms. Evans' paint splattered classroom has long been a refuge for those looking to get in touch with their creative sides. From the first mandatory art classes at Uni to that last half credit right before graduation, l'entrée des artistes provides the kind of quiet but welcoming environment that many students need to take the edge off their day.











Hitting the HIGH NOTES

The Uni High music department has had a very busy and exciting year. The Chorus and Orchestra share a single class period and alternate class every other day. Both had successful concerts in late January. The Uni Orchestra also supplied the pit orchestra for the Spring Musical, Fiddler on the Roof. Many students were selected to attend the Illinois Music Educator's Association (ILMEA) All-District Festival, which recognizes the best musicians across the state. From All-District, a record number of 13 students were chosen to advance to All-State. Junior Matt Reeder won 1st place in the State for his Choral composition, and the Madrigals were invited to sing his winning piece.

The Madrigals performed at the annual Uni Winter Party, a couple of nursing homes, and had a performance with the Baroque Artists of Champaign-Urbana. The Jazz Bands decided to try something new and instead of Art in the Attic, there was a Art and Jazz exhibition.

FOREHAND VOLLEY

Although there wasn't a Uni girls tennis team, four people played for Uni this year: Iulianna Taritsa, Lindsay Huang, Grace Qiu, and Selena Wang. At Sectionals, Lindsay and Grace came in 3rd and 4th respectively, allowing them to advance to state for singles. Neither Grace nor Lindsay placed at state, but it was impressive that they made it.

"We represented Uni well at Sectionals and state. State was a great experience and provided us with exposure to talented players that we don't get to play in CU. It taught us what strokes worked and what we need to keep improving on for next year."

Lindsay Huang

DYNAMIC DUO

Varun Chopra and DJ Nelson represented the Uni High Golf Team coached by Scott Easton. Varun led the area with a 36.3 nine hole average, and DJ with a 41.0. Varun won individual regional and sectional titles (including the Twin City Meet and a playoff at Sectionals) before reaching state. Uni sent two out of nine area golfers to advance as individual golfers at state. At state, it was windy and cold, with tricky pins. However, Varun finished runner up with one putt away from claiming the title in Class 1A. After a 9-over 81, DJ tied for 18th.

"It was cool [playing at state] because there were so many teams and players. There were a lot of people watching so there was a lot of pressure [but] I made it to the final group."

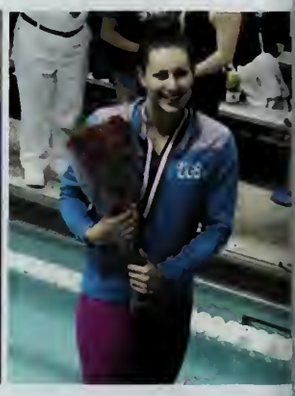
BIG SPLASH

The girls swim team sent the most people to state out of everyone in a 30-school sectional. Those girls included Ema Rajic, Claire Dickerson, Lauren Monahan, Maddie Nelson and Sarah Lee with Giulia Barbieri and Raine Bernhard as alternates. At state, Ema Rajic finished second in the 100 Breast with a time of 1:02:68, just 1/12th of a second from first place. In the 200IM, Ema placed third, but with a time that surpassed the All-America standard.



"This season we had the most tight-knit team ever. Unfortunately, I did not overflow the toilet again."

Ema Rajic

[My favorite things about the season were] "Eating food and watching Borat at Chris's house with the team, reliving the state run for the second time, and being undefeated in the regular season"

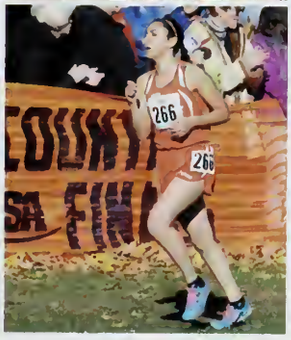
Panos Voulgaris

TREND SETTERS

The boys soccer team entered the state finals undefeated with a record of 23-0-1. In the first match they came up against Timothy-Elmhurst Christian, the state runner-up from 2014. In this first game Uni fell 1-4 for their first loss of the season. The team came back the next day to take on Rockford Keith Country Day School. The game was played in a cold, driving rain. Despite this the Uni fans were still present and loud. Both teams were very skilled and the game was played very evenly, however, in the end Uni, again, could not pull out the win, with a final score of 2-3. The fourth place finish is the second best finish for a Uni boy's soccer team. The 2015 team set many records throughout the season that look to stand for a long time.

RUNNERS-UP

The girls cross country team returned to state for the second year in a row. Hoping to do well, the girls ran to a second place finish as a team and are getting bumped up to class 2A next year. Although they had injuries during the season, Arielle Summitt and Annemarie Michael placed 3rd and 7th respectively. Next year, the cross country team will lose some of their valuable runners: Berit Hudson-Rasmussen, Katie Tender, and Mariam Arif, but the cross country team hopes to make it to state again.



"I'm really proud of our team this season. Everyone was laser focused and ready by the time state rolled around. We gave it our all and got 2nd place to show for it. I'm pretty happy with my 3rd place finish too."

Arielle Summitt

MOVE ON UP

Cross Country

The Class of 2020 arrived at Uni in August unsure of what was awaiting them during their first year. The IESA sports schedule opened weeks earlier as the Cross Country runners took to the streets to train. The word must has spread about Coach Doug Mynatt's successful program, as he was greeted with a huge subbie cross country squad this year. Each year is different, but typical subbie squads consist of maybe ten runners total, but the 2020 squad was strong in ability and numbers.

Individual State qualifier Erin Minor led the Subbie girls' cross country team to a fifth-place finish at Sectionals, with the scoring five for Uni all crossing the finish line in under 16:10. Minor advanced to State with her eleventh-place finish at Sectionals and achieved a personal best of 13:28 on the course, placing 86th.

The Subbie boys' team took second place at the Sectional competition, with Nicholas Ramkumar pulling an individual eighth-place finish in 11:49. Ramkumar bested that time a week later, running the state course in 11:13 to achieve 24th place and become Uni's most recent IESA Cross Country All-Stater. The rest of the team followed close behind, claiming ninth place from the field of twenty-four teams.

Girls Basketball

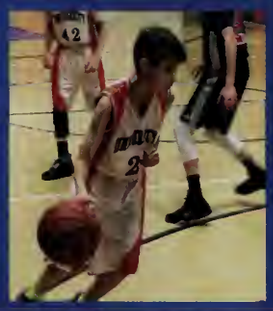
The girls' basketball team roster was also full of solid contributors this year. A good mix of guards and post players allowed the squad to mix and match during practice and games. The girls' season was highlighted by a landslide 37-13 road victory against Countryside and a comeback victory in the first round of their Regional competition, ousting Gifford 30-22 after scoring 14 unanswered points in the fourth quarter.

The girls' team finished with a record of 3-9 in the regular season and won their First Regional game before falling to Royal Prairieview Ogden in the second round.

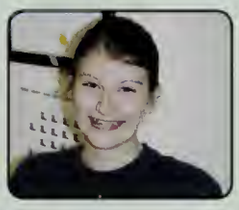
Boys Basketball

The boys' basketball season got rolling with a strong 35-25 win at Thomasboro. With that hurdle cleared, a dozen others lined up to take its place. The Uni squad's skills and perseverance were put to the test in long strings of away games, but they gave their all, putting points on the scoreboard against teams from St. Johns and St. Malachy.

Things picked up again towards the end of the season, with the Uni boys clawing their way to a second win over Thomasboro, this time at home and with a much closer score of 37-34. The Illineks concluded their season at 3-11 overall with a loss in the Regional to Chrisman Scottland.



MARY WALKER
"Overall, I loved the season and getting to spend time with my team! Way to never give up, guys!"



ERIN MINOR
"I found cross country to be a good way to meet new people. It was a really great to not only become closer to your classmates, but also students from other classes. Everyone on the team was very friendly and supportive. Cross country was what really helped me adjust to life at Uni."

MUSTAFA SYED
"The season had its ups and downs. It really changed us as individuals and we became something more than a team, we became a family."

THE REAL DEAL

STRONG ATTACK AND SOLID DEFENSE FORM PERFECT STORM

A solid group of returning upperclassmen and a talented freshmen class helped lead the team to one of their best years in recent history. This group started out the season strong with a 5-1 win against Williamsville in their first match. The success did not end there. The team finished with a record of 8 wins, 3 losses, and 2 ties with a big 5-0 win over rivals St. Thomas More.

The Illineks were led by juniors Jonah Herzog (6 goals, 3 assists), Daniel Vardy (4 goals, 5 assists), freshmen Alex Higgs (9 goals, 3 assists), and Lawrence Taritsa (3 goals, 5 assists) on offense. During the match against St. Thomas More, Herzog, Vardy, and Higgs combined to score all 5 goals. The team as a whole outscored opponents 32 to 11 and outshot opponents 174 to 75. Newcomer Kaden Canales helped to hold down the defense. The keeper duo of Camron Butler and Lyle Regenwetter combined for 31 saves for the season. Many others played significant roles for the teams's success, allowing for a team that played well with each other no matter who they were up against.

In the words of freshman Martin Dalling the season was, "an exciting beginning." The team looks to build on this success in future seasons.

JONAH HERZOG

'My favorite moment was when Brian ran over to celebrate a goal with me...and completely knocked me down. Beating Centennial was cool, and we actually had a winning season!'

LESS IS MORE

This team's low numbers may have served as an obstacle, but it allowed strong bonds to form between players.

"This year's team was one of the smallest in Uni High volleyball history." Head Coach Meredith Young explains as one of the obstacles the team had to overcome this season. Last season the team had so many players that they were forced to break into two JV teams (because of a lack of uniforms). This year's team was polar opposite and, by the end of the season, they barely had enough players for their starting lineup.

In addition to a much smaller team, they also had a new coach: Kaila Simpson. Being a former Uni student and varsity player herself, she helped players practice various skills to prepare them for varsity in the following years. "It was great to have Kaila as a coach...On the court she gave me tips, and off the court we shared many funny stories." says outside hitter Madie Gardner.

Though Kaila forced the team to be focused and organized, the team had a fun season. When asked about the team dynamic, freshman setter Jessica Valete said, "It was great! We all genuinely cared for each other and had so much fun with whatever we got up to!"

BABY STEPS

Fresh faces fill Uni's youthful roster

Although the girls' JV basketball team may not have won many games this year, the team was still able to pull through the season without giving up. The players were even able to grow and bond as team through their losses. As a result, the members of the team were able to have a lot of fun.

The girls' JV team was directed by Coach Alex Burns, the newest addition to Uni High Sports. The JV girls were led on the court by freshman Jessica Valete (guard) and freshman Macheila Anderson (forward).

Through the coach and team captains' strong guidance, the team players were able to create a positive environment in which they could push each other to work harder. Everyone improved both as individuals and as a whole team. Even though many members were new to the team this year, each player was able to contribute many great things on the courts this season.

GO FIGHT WIN

Uni's JV Boys Basketball had an overachieving season, due in part to their team unity and strong chemistry.

The stakes had never been all that high for any Uni High basketball team in the past, but a talented group of freshman combined with some strong leaders paved the way for a memorable season for Uni's JV boys basketball team. Key players this year included quick point guard Asante Woods, strong forward DJ Nelson, and junior veterans Clark Ping, Ethan Simmons, and Camron Butler.

The JV team bonded very well, which was obvious to see on the court as everyone buzzed around opponents, with creative passes and slick moves. One of the highlights of the season was definitely beating Cornerstone Christian on Uni Versus Cancer night by a considerable margin.

Many other JV teams came in expecting an easy game and were surprised by the speed of their opponent. Oblivious to the countless times Woods stole the ball and found sophomore Van Gundersen for an easy two points. But overall, the entire team came together to exceed all expectations using their effective teamwork and chemistry.

The bench squad out-hustled every other lineup, and what they lacked in game experience they made up for in heart, particularly the aptly named 'Ragin' Asian Invasion".

PERFECT SEASON

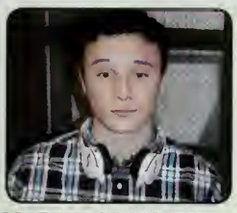
UNI RAMPAGES THROUGH REGULAR SEASON TO REACH STATE SEMI-FINALS

This year's Uni High Varsity Boys Soccer team will be long remembered as one of the greatest in school history. Proof lies in the records set during the year: most consecutive wins (16), most wins in a season (24), most wins to start a season (16), most goals scored (134), most assists (122), least goals scored against (22), and tied for least amount of losses (2) and most unique goal scorers.

The 2015 squad took to the pitch to start the year looking to return the program to the glory it had experienced three years prior. The Illineks cruised through the regular season and most of the post-season on the way to getting fourth at State. The team was lead by a strong core of seniors including captains Chris Bauer, Neil Tewksbury, and Panos Voulgaris.

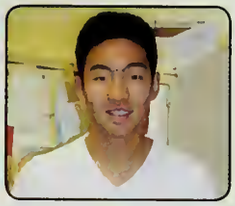
Coach Phil Anders and the squad made a decision in the off season to change their conditioning routine and it paid off. Uni traditionally was a ball control offense and that did not change, but now the team was better conditioned and able to wear their opponents down as the game progressed. As the only team in the area to play against all other Champaign-Urbana teams, Uni earned the "unofficial" title of Twin City Champs by defeating rivals Saint Thomas-More, Urbana, Judah Christian, Centennial, and drawing against Central.

The Illineks made the IHSA State Finals, as they rolled early round tourney opponents, yet needed a tough come from behind victory against Beecher in a driving rainstorm at Urbana High to do so. Once at State the Illineks suffered two defeats against quality teams to finish fourth.



MARTIN GROSMAN

"The boys did something truly spectacular this year. An undefeated record lasting 25 games, blowing out teams from all across the state, and eventually reaching the state finals is an accomplishment worthy of much praise. Despite losing two frustrating games at the end of the season, this team successfully possessed the ball better than any other in the state, and had a handful of the area's most talented players on the squad as well. Playing what most would consider a "beautiful" style of soccer, Uni High continued to outclass and outplay nearly every team they faced, regardless of what the News Gazette reported."



ALBERT LEE

"There were definitely a lot of firsts this season. It was my first year playing high school soccer, my first year going to an IHSA State Competition, my first time learning philosophy at soccer practice, and so much more. But, probably one of the hardest firsts to get used to was the amount of pennies I had to collect after every practice. Completely worth it though!"

REACHING HIGHER

NEW ADDITIONS TO TEAM LEADS TO NEW ACHIEVEMENTS

This year's varsity volleyball team started the season having lost their long-time coach Lis Pollock, six seniors and their beloved setter, Grace Peacock. Luckily, within the program were players ready to fill the empty shoes and knee pads. Senior Lydia Mihaly says, "No one approached these things as obstacles. We saw having a new coach as a way to get a fresh eye on what we needed to work on. We learned how to adjust and be flexible from the change in setter. We also learned that having fewer players isn't a bad thing, as everyone was able to get more individual attention and grow more." Meredith Young became head coach and sophomore Kathryn Dullerud stepped up as starting setter, not only bringing her talent as an athlete but her energy and leadership to the court. Kathryn was a part of the two sets of sisters that started almost every game: Natalie Dullerud, senior, as libero, Tyra Greer, senior, as middle hitter, and Maya Greer, sophomore, in right side.

Including Natalie and Tyra, the varsity had seven seniors (Makayla Dorsey, Alyson Gerdes, Beth Geistlinger, Lydia Mihaly, and Maddie Brown) who were celebrated with a heartfelt Senior Night ceremony and game against Deland-Weldon High School. Though the Illineks fell short that night, the season was ultimately a success. "Our record didn't accurately portray how we performed over the season. We had a lot of rebuilding to do, and I was really proud of where we were by the end of the season," says Mihaly. Uni ended up winning the first game of their 2A IHSA Regional tournament for the first time since before the seniors were even on the team, which Kathryn Dullerud calls "a good representation of how our season went." In addition to the overall team success, Natalie Dullerud and, unanimously, junior Callie Bruce were voted as players in the ECIC All-Conference team.

NATALIE DULLERUD

"The season went really well. Although we didn't always get the result we wanted, I think we grew a lot this year. We had some losses that really helped us get better and learn from our mistakes."

LYDIA MIHALY

"Our team dynamic was the strongest I've seen in years... There was never a weak link on the court and you could rely on everyone to do what needed to be done."

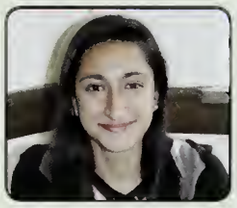
ANIKA KIMME

"The team had a rough start but we improved throughout the season. We built up to the State meet, which was actually my favorite meet of the year. I also liked getting to know the upperclassmen and how the cross country runners were [illegible]"



MARIAM ARIF

"Being a first year team member, this has been a truly memorable season. The workouts helped me improve dramatically, and the highlight of the season was proving Herr W wrong that I could last more than two weeks."

At the beginning of the season, some were worried about the smaller size of this year's girls' cross country team. After losing a solid senior core, and gaining only two new members, Doug Mynatt's squad seemed to be at a disadvantage. However, all doubts disappeared after the first meet, when the team earned an impressive 3rd place. Their meet showings only improved after that, with the girls' team securing first place victories in seven straight mid-season meets.

The secret to their success? A strong cast of runners across every grade level. Seniors Berit Hudson-Rasmussen and Katie Tender served as influential leaders, and ran alongside their fellow seniors Athena Feng, a seasoned runner, and Mariam Arif, who was a new addition to the team. Sophomore speedster Arielle Summitt and junior Annemarie Michael consistently placed high in every meet (having times of 17:37 and 17:53, respectively, at State), and helped the team push their way to the top of the standings. Juniors Ha-il Son, Tori Aber, Grace Taylor, and Renata Herrera, as well as sophomore Emily Atkinson, ran very well this season as well, and will be a powerful squad of upperclassmen next year. Anika Kimme not only held her own as the only freshman on the girls' team, but earned a spot in the top seven runners by the state meets.

Ultimately, the girls team took second at Regionals, Sectionals and State. In each meet, Uni faced local teams which were equally as deep and talented. The Illineks tied for first at Regionals, only to lose the tiebreaker to Unity. Looking for revenge the next week, Uni again was defeated by Unity, but in all one of Uni's best finishes at State to date.

TIMMY PURNELL

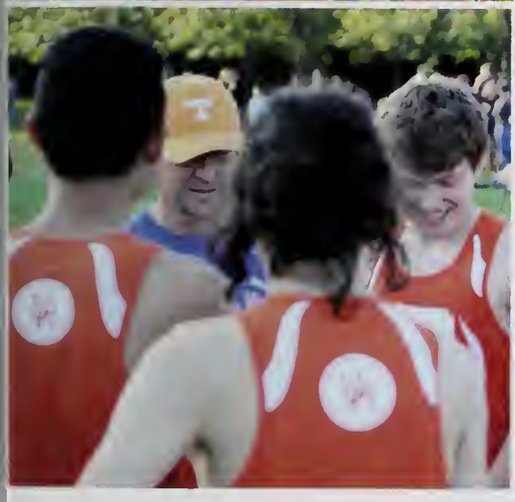
"The boys cross country team all had a lot of fun this year, even though we didn't make it to State. Of course, we're super proud of the girls' team that did!"

HARMEN ALLEYNE

"This season was pretty awesome, and our team was really cool. My favorite parts of the season were the jokes we all shared with each other."

BOYS XC GOES ABOVE AND BEYOND YET AGAIN

ORANGE RUSH



Another summer flew by, and before long, the Uni Boys Cross Country team was back at the UI Arboretum taking on hills and running around town. A big year was in store for the Illineks, with returning letter-winners Jack Zeiders, Justin Wang, Isaac Freund, Grant Allen and Timmy Purnell hoping to repeat last year's state qualification. Freshmen Jacob Minin and Alex Swanson-Linville also joined the pack, completing a strong core of runners.

Injuries hampered the 2015 squad throughout the season with many runners having to limit training and competing due to ailments. Though the frontrunners were essential for the team, some key finishes behind them led to their success. Dong-Ha Son, Vicente Aldunate-Hernandez, and Danny Liang, in particular, finished meets strong to improve the team's place. All in all, the team morale stayed high this season, and the team grew closer together.

Uni High started the season in high strides, impressing at the Kickapoo Kickoff Classic outside Danville, before dodging cowpies in Chrisman and running through a difficult course in Peoria at the First to the Finish Invite.

The highlight of the year was definitely the News Gazette Twin City meet at the Arboretum. With the rest of Champaign-Urbana watching, Uni beat out all other area boys teams, winning the annual meet in style.

As the season wound to a close, Uni competed in the very competitive Paxton Regional. The Illineks finished fifth out of thirteen teams in order to qualify for IHSA Sectionals. The Sectional meet brought a close to the season as Uni placed eighth overall and ultimately fell just shy of another state place. Nonetheless, this year's Boys Cross Country team can still look back fondly on the memories of this season and their collective achievements.

BEASTS OF THE WEEK

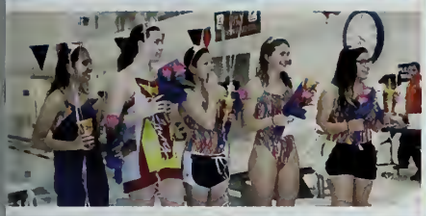
Since most of the 2014 swim team escaped to the world of higher-education this past year, the remaining "Seastars" were on the hunt for new team members. A recruiting campaign was launched on the upper floors of Uni with great success. A total of eight freshman swimmers joined the team as the 2015 season began. Once on board, there was no issue of retention as this year's group of swimmers had a blast while working towards a common goal.

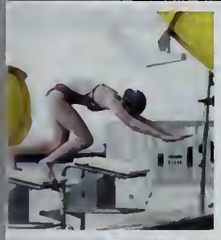
August practices, which started about a week before school, were relaxed to help the new recruits feel comfortable. By mid-September, practices grew more intense, causing the veteran swimmers to give individual attention to younger team members in an effort to keep team spirit strong. The squad used: "Beast of the Week" medals and "Unbirthday" Friday serenades to keep the atmosphere loose. Later in the year, the squad turned to "Spirit Days" to keep the pool time fun. As a result of all this bonding, 2015 saw an extremely close collection of "Seastars".

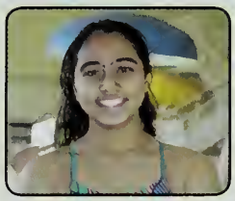
This bond was tested frequently during the year as the Illineks endured a large number of injuries. Elizabeth Singer, Christelle Seri, Lina Florez, Ema Rajic, Ella Roth, Emma Loewenstein, Victoria Kindratenko, and Monica Pardeshi all suffered from concussion, injured feet, or damaged shoulders.

Despite the injuries, when the team actual dove into the water for competitions, they inflicted damage on their opponents. Each meet, Uni was competitive and proved to still be one of the top programs in downstate Illinois. The team was excited to receive new "tight skins" for Sectionals, which "make you feel squeezed like a grape," according to junior Lauren Monahan, but which provide a special competitive edge for important meets. Raine Bernhard and Giulia Barbieri both PRed at Sectionals.

Seven swimmers represented Uni at State. Seniors Claire Dickerson, and Sarah Lee qualified for the third year in relays, and senior Maddie Nelson qualified for her third time in individual events (the 500 free). Raine Bernhard, Giulia Barbieri, and Lauren Monahan also went to swim in the 400 free and 200 medley relays that qualified. Sophomore Ema Rajic attended her second state meet, PRing by more than a second in both the 200 medley and the 100 breast stroke, and claiming 3rd place in the later.







MONICA PARDESHI

"We had a young team this year. About half the girls were freshman and many of them had not swum competitively before, but it was great to see both freshman and veterans getting so many PRs."

MADELEINE NELSON

"The team was a lot closer than years in the past because more than half of the team was new and so we planned a lot of team bonding activities. Swim meets can be really long, but this year we were more excited for them and for practice. We were just having fun. It wasn't as intense."

RISE AS ONE

NEW COACH, SAME TEAM, GREAT EXPECTATIONS

New head coach Darin O'Connell, Uni's third coach in four years, went straight to work, implementing three tangible goals as soon as he stepped on the court for the first practice: more wins than losses, conference title, and regional title. Despite having to learn a new system that came along with the new coach, the Illineks bought in to the new philosophy and competed with toughness and intensity throughout the season to achieve their goals.

Under O'Connell's leadership, the Illineks capped off an impressive early-season win against the Turkey Tourney champion, Villa Grove-Heritage. With two starters missing, the Illineks had a rocky start to the season. Things picked up, however, as the Illineks endured a tough stretch of games. Led by seniors Panos Voulgaris and Chris Bauer, sophomore Noah Blue, and junior Varun Chopra, the Uni boys capped off clutch wins against Hoopeston and Oakwood. The Illineks also got their most impressive win of the season after Varun Chopra hit the game-winning three at the buzzer, against a strong Tuscola team.

The Illineks kept up the intensity and play in the second half of the season as they got wins over Arthur Okaw Christian and crosstown rival Judah. Rolling into the ECIC tournament as the top seed, the boys cruised to the final with a win against Decatur Christian. The Illineks won a thriller against the number two seed, Cornerstone Christian, as Noah Blue sank a game-winning free throw to help the team secure the conference championship for the second year in a row on Judah's home court. Despite the momentum, the senior-heavy squad's season was cut shorter than it should have, as the Illineks, a five seed, were upset in the first round of the IHSA Regionals in a strong performance by Judah. All in all, it was a great season, changing outside perceptions towards the program and raising expectations for the seasons to come.

JACOB RAJLICH

"Overall I can't complain. To win over half our games, especially the close ones, was a lot more than I could ask for. Winning the conference again was awesome too. I wish we could have gotten farther in playoffs."

CHRIS BAUER

"Our team chemistry this year was very good, keeping the upward trend from last year. It was a great season and my favorite memory was getting out of down and backs with a dunk.

STARTING OVER

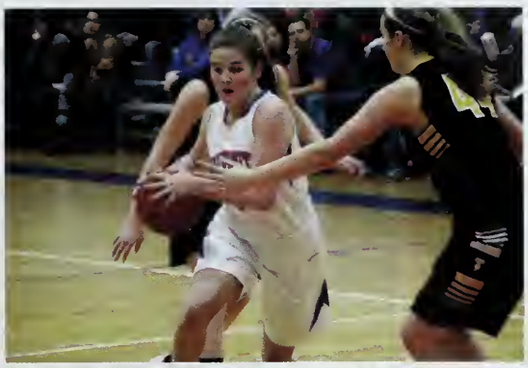
UNI'S STRONG FINISH TAKES IT TO THE CONFERENCE FINALS

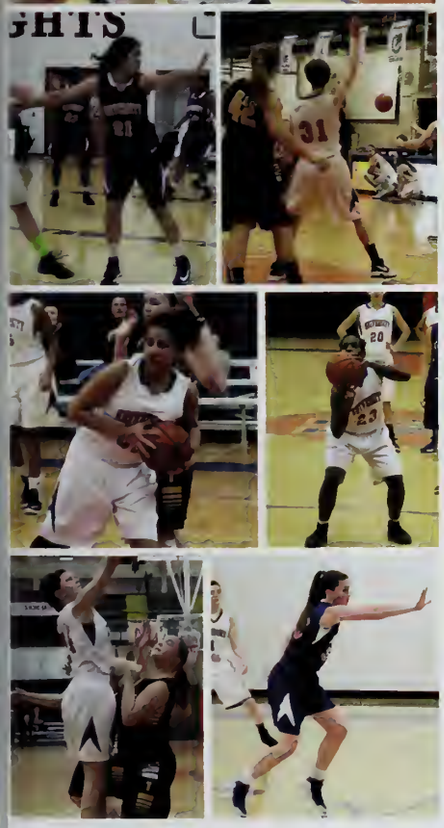
This year's Uni High Varsity Girls Basketball team played a season full of interesting games that have been described as both "the worst 32 minutes of basketball" and "the happiest day of my life".

After having to say goodbye to three of last year's top scorers (Raebekkah Pratt-Clarke, Madeleine Nelson, Lydia Mihaly) and coach (Talisa Rhea), the girls knew that this season would be one of rebuilding. Fortunately, former assistant coach Jeff Bruer stepped up to the head coaching position to pick up where Rhea left off.

It was a rocky road to conference play with the team only winning one game prior. However, the girls are in agreement that for many of these losses, the score did not reflect the effort and improvements happening on the court. Throughout the season, they limited turnovers and ended with an impressive increase in free throw percentages. Junior Aja Trask scored a total of 305 points, leading the team numerically and off the court as team captain alongside senior Maddie Brown.

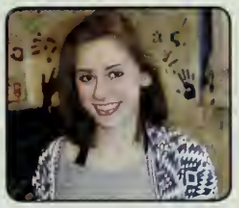
The Illineks finished the season strong, beating Decatur Christian in their last regular season game. Heading into the postseason, defeated Judah Christian in the ECIC tournament, bringing them to the championship game where they fell to Calvary. But the girls did not give up hope, coming back to beat Judah again in the first round of Regionals. For many of the girls this was the highlight of the season where they saw all their hard work coming together. Their season ended with a loss to Cissna Park, ranked 4th in the state. Go Illinecks!





AJA TRASK

"Our main challenges were getting used to a new coach and losing some key players from last year. It was definitely a year of rebuilding but our attitudes off the court made it easy to build confidence and learn to trust each other as a team. Beating Judah was pretty much the happiest day of my life, or at least this basketball season. We had lost to them once in front of all our friends and fans, but we came back and beat them twice after that. I think that's a pretty good example of our attitudes this year. Through all of our obstacles we just kept smiling and kept playing."



BETH GEISTLINGER

Aja [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] game. Mostly we just persevered through. About half way, [illegible] we realized [illegible] to be tough, but we kept [illegible] and in the end [illegible]

I, Mariam, of puppy-loving mind and runner's body, leave the following to the following people. To Anika, I leave Barry the Bee's everlasting support and the goal to impress you. For Minin, I leave punny jokes. Grace T. gets peanut M&M's. To Annemarie I leave Life Is Good apparel and Youstus. Renata gets to not be called "Mariam" and many cheek hugs. To Saahithi and Sankya, I leave Bollywood songs and killer dance moves. Devin gets a new lunch box. To Aja, Kyra, and Camden, I leave the Track team. Aja gets lotion, healthy food, and a special chocolate too. Kyra also gets part of my braid. For Arielle, I leave Nike everything, ChooChooGo, and a ticket to the first stop on our across-the-country trip. Ha il, you get the letter V, my second toe, bathroom stories, cackles, and uncomfortable selfies. To the XC team, I leave Javier, scones, Jones BBQ Foot Massage, and Shia LaBeouf. To the track team, I leave fluffy puff marshmallows, Karl's pig calls, bagels, and Armory workouts. I leave my love and good luck wishes for both teams! Lastly, for my teachers and coaches, I leave many thank yous for sharing your time and knowledge!

I leave the following people the following things. Caroline & Madie: my basement and party planning skills. Tori: my "bro" status. Ethan: a long-awaited dad-date, "Best Nazi" award, and John Harden. John: my boy, please take care of Melanie an' the baby, and Ethan Simmons. Kathryn: a Natalie-free closet and wallet, and the Chuck (not Dan) to your Blair. Glo & Jess: infinite volleyball serves and an eternity of your adorable friendship. Van: half smiles, all the life advice you'll ever need, and Kareem Abdul Jabbar. Noah: the knowledge that you can literally bench press me, and front row Illini tickets. Daniel: a nightstand and fresh Chicken McNeggets. Sam: the hot new album from DDDDJ MONDOO and the gnome from Project X. Varun: a huge poster of your own face, my seat in the Chem room, and a hot curry queen on the links. Aja: a bottle of my urine to commemorate all the times you made me pee myself with laughter, and the basketball team. Martin: a cop-free senior year, the 1500N 500E street sign, p* jamz, and the passenger seat of my car, and the backseat, and the trunk for your brace... you can just have the whole car. Callie: hot soccer boys, Jeff and Jeff, standing naps, pretzel breath, and a hand to hold whenever you need it #Caddie4Ever. To my teachers: this Senior Will was turned in late, just like everything I turned in for you. Thanks for putting up with it and for everything you taught me (some more than others but hey at least you gave it a shot!). Stay funky, Uni.

Tyra said I had a lip infection so I tried to kiss her. – Priya

I, Tyra, do bequeath these following: To Aja I leave a smile and contacts that work. To Callie I leave all the blocking and a very empty varsity volleyball team. To Maddie I leave a better PE buddy and someone who actually has their prox. To Priya I leave a smile, my fairy powers, and a new hoodie. To Maya I leave my plasma and no more itchy-back-of-knee. To Raphie I leave someone else to harass you while you're trying to go to class. To Serena, I leave a better nickname. To the alto sax section, I leave you French horn music and another section leader with an equally bad attitude. To Kathryn I leave those $2 I took from you at IMEA and never gave back.

I, Berit, of singing mind and running body, hereby bequeath the following: to Emily, the last of the Uni-Mennonite legacy, cat stories, and a rocketship. To my XC lion pack I leave chocolate milk, PRs, and pre-race shake-outs. To Annemarie, beef jerky and a best-in-class award; Grace: half marathons and street-crossing skills; Hanil: a season of perfect health; Tori: laughter and shoelaces; Arielle: the Universal theme song; Elizabeth: sub20; Anika: all the food, hats, and a workout buddy. I leave you all my love and thanks for a great season—go kill it in 2A. Madrigals get hats, a metronome, and free food at all events. Caroline, Angie, and all the cool theatre people get a clean costume room and low-stress tech weeks. Renata gets all the choir boys. To Timmy I leave hamburgers and the older and wiser age of 17. Molly gets cats and ninja clothing. To my Japanese class: たくさん もも. Herr W: books with strong female characters. Mitchell gets nicely shaped classrooms. Fing/Mr. Murphy: thanks for a subbie death scene and helping me find confidence in my voice. To Doug I leave state trophies and endless thanks for never ever letting me give up.

I, Natalie Hummel, of scattered mind and small, t-shirted body, leave the following: Tintin, I am taking the cookies that Iuls left you because you owe me a lot of cookies. I'm leaving, in their stead, long waits for ears of corn and getting run over by my bike. Lobes, I leave you permission to DJ...reluctantly. Alex, I leave you a poke in the ribs. The Smizzies get three guesses and Victoria gets many SciOly adventures. To the French clubbers, with Anna and Iuls' permission, I bequeath le club de Francais; Gardez-le bien! and one final French fun fact: You know that really big guy from the Princess Bride? He was French. To Antoine, I leave the raspberry sauce that I never made again and ridiculously huge amounts of any other food. To Lili, awkward bus rides where we both sort of talk at Olivia about different things. To Mr. Garvey, some Frisbee, and to Madame, a final morbid fun fact: The big guy from the princess bride died while he was in Paris for his father's funeral. And to all of my teachers, more thanks than I can express. To Alyssa, many good triple jumps, and to the rest of the track team, Karl's pig calls. Livlers, you get nothing. Not spelling lessons, running stress, bus rides, cups of poison tea c(_), MUSSEMALLEs, macaroons or melenvelopes. No statuses, smokey bacon, stopping the bus, or sassy faces. No music hating and no art lessons because you always skip them anyway. Nothing OB related because mine is better and I'm taking the rest with me. Absolutely nothing for Livs.

Working hard there Panos? – Bergandine

I, Gus Kasten of reasonably sound mind and exceptionally sound body, do declare this my Second-to-Last Will and Testament. To fellow students I bequeath the following: To Jonah Herzog the 5W Exp, may you rule over it wisely. To Joy and Sankia: your names. To Martin and Chloe; two bars of soap for your dirty dirty mouths. To Lizzie and Molly the memory of our friendship, and a little bit of height. To Noah Blue, a better story to tell after State Finals. To the younger members of the soccer team: "So there was this purple flower...." To Raphaelle, many apologies for messing with you and some sleep and apparently everything. To Anna Troutt and a certain Blanke, the title of Grace-Good Shepard Volleyball Champs. To the Rohenolts, jackets with names on them. To Alley Susman, some really good hops. To Mikhail Sigablob, the last but not least better CAD software and the ability to run. To the teachers who have had to put up with me for 5 long years a big thank you and some hair dye.

I, of flawless body and incredible mind, bequeath the following things to the following people: Max gets a working soldering iron. Lia gets completed math homework. Angie gets my good things, including a pillow to sit on, a hug, and a great two years. Kat receives her blanket back, boys that aren't frats, and less rage. Singer gets someone in the building. Madie gets a new Target employee. Emily can take anything she wants. Lauren gets nepotism. Andrew gets my gloves. Ally and Raphi get greetings in the hallway. James gets no shade for spring-shaming, thicker veins, and the request to play trumpet at my funeral. Bart gets a World Series win for the cubs and Anthony gets nothing except blue paint. Priya gets new new from Kimbra and a great senior year.
All of the teachers and staff, especially Mr. Stone, Mr. Sutton, and Lisa, get endless gratitude for getting me into college. Lisa gets new candles. Uni gets sixty-nine handprints.
To everyone, thank you so much for making Uni a home to me. I'm going to get a drink, and I'm sure I'll see you guys before I leave. So here it is – my moment of zen.

Duder, really, I'm not screwing with you. – John Walkington

To Vikram, I give good taste in movies and comic books. To Caroline, I give a Romeo who has his lines memorized. To Callie, I give continued athleticism, and to Minwoo, I give best friend status instead of to Joon. To John Harden, I give more juicy details and more first thing in the morning conversations. Yes, I do want to know about whatever you're asking about. To Ethan Simmons, I give even longer speeches in English, and to Jackson Vaughn I give rap music, Gotham, and more walks back from Kenney. To Sammy Hotchkiss, I give another text message ruse. To Kat, I give Big Show and maybe studprod again. To Sasha the subbie, and whoever gets elected as the leaders of the club, I leave Model UN. Take care of it, lord knows RJ and I could have done a better job. And to Madie Gardner, I bequeath Han Solo, horror movies, Sex Criminals, and Michael Cera. And to any subbies coming into the school I give this one piece of advice: don't get locked in a locker on the third day of school, you'll never hear the end of it.

I LOVE THE UNDER-CHIN!!! – Zina Dolan

Noah Larson

I, Noah Larson, being of musical mind and plaid-cloaked body, do leave Uni with a heavy heart and bequeath the following: to Renata and Matt: you get the Fine Arts department and Madrigals leadership next year. You may recruit Anupam to the leadership of the fine arts department ONLY if he comes back to the percussion section. To Vikram: I leave a lifetime of happiness for you and Anupam. Also, make sure he comes back to the percussion section. To Lucia: you get German class and terribl(ly) amazing music videos. Devin: you get the name Nigel. Feel free to use it if you're ever running from the law, playing viola, or both. To Stella: I leave you ECIYO and the ability to be done with a quartet member's sh before rehearsal even starts. You also gain the ability to call me Turkey. To every subfreshman: you get the ability to stick it out and make these 5 years count. Believe me, I wasn't the greatest student there ever was but education is supremely important and the Uni faculty are some of the best and more supportive I've ever seen or heard of. Congratulations, and good luck.

Sheila- Unlock the Swag. You get my respect for the crazy things you have and will accomplish. Lauren gets recorder skills, fancy calculator (cases), and awkward praise songs. Hoolia gets great boyzzz and greater grades. Kathryn gets all the extra food from a Natalieless Uni and house. Thanks for the car rides/talks about sucky people. Tell Widdle Wexy that I say hey :) Hadley gets enthusiastic Hi!!!'s and unexplainable admiration. CFCYG- stay faithful! Anthony gets Ziploc bags of sausages to whip out during geometry class. Miss(understood) Carissa gets our boy talks that I will miss dearly. Dale gets warm feet and uninjured sports seasons. Callie gets unlimited shopping and my genuine thanks for understanding. Aja gets bobegnops, kcart, sgnilraj, adnap, full-length shirts, jarlings dates that actually happen and ears to play by. James gets stats (jk who does), my musical talents, those awful videos of me falling asleep in class, someone new to rant to at 8 am, and the best of luck in everything. Adi gets deja vu. Lisa gets 20 minute meetings that last three periods and my utmost gratitude for everything. Mr. Stone gets a new family member to bug you (haha) once I'm gone. Mr. Sutton- thanks for your encouragement no matter what I was going through. Mr. Rayburn gets another 5 semester student and my college essays. Sensei- I'll miss you! Ms. Lombardi gets someone to rant with about today's education system. And finally Ms. Boca gets Winston from New Girl and all the fun times from geometry/stats/calc/prom planning.

"Moonlight drowns out all but the brightest stars"

I, Angela Li, of food mind and body, leave the following things to people: Serena gets fat pigs, piglets, boars, etc to remind her of her roots. Raphaelle gets the word "friend" also to remind her of her roots. Anthony can have baozi, yue bing, rice, other food, people with good Chinese, and other Chinese stuff. Sankhya gets to appreciate hair ties and hairless locker rooms. Joy and Sankya get my kindly judging looks and a relationship counselor. Martin gets his favorite Kepler. Molly can have cat apps and the cats I currently own (zero). Lauren gets the part of my soul that eats her food. Tina and Giulia have my well wishes in mvs and dramas. Anna gets Mulan I guess. "Subbie" Martin gets soccer discussions. To Sensei, I give good tabemono. Mr. Bergandine gets a new stock of amino acids and our cellulase. Mr. Stone gets a non-A-dawg-invaded refrigerator, and to all the teachers and faculty, I leave my thanks.

I, Elissa Blake Grove Mullins, being of moonstruck mind, bantam body, hematic heart, and sober soul, hereby bequeath the following sentiments, legacies, and gramercies: Upon my departure, the Science and Math Departments will receive the poetry I wrote in the margins of my notebooks instead of taking notes (apologies all around) – but Mr. Buck gets to keep my meticulous Topics notes. Merf can keep my inhaler, along with my sincerest thanks for making fun of me just the right amount. Mr. Lauthen has my gratitude for letting me crash his Latin IV class and helping me steam through the Aeneid. To Fing and Mr. Murphy, I pay my rent – the Attics have been my home away from home. The entirety of the History Department receives my admiration and adoration, and the English department gets to keep a large chunk of my soul, encapsulated in page after page of earnestly and passionately crafted essays, stories, and poems. To all my beloved thespians and other theatrical dabblers, I leave a plea to carry on the drama (both staged and social) without sacrificing the love – if necessary, sacrificing a few lambs in the process. Lastly, to the young ones: A deep breath. Valete!

[Insert Out Of Context Quotes Here]

I, the incomparable JYP, do hereby leave the following. To Ethan Simmons, majority ownership of 2K Squad. To Minwoo Choi, sports days every day and appreciation for LeBron's greatness (#TheReturnIsNeverHappening). To Anthony Wu, pillows for your in-class naps and (fake) locker room fights. To Van Gundersen, creepy stares in the hallway. To John Harden, as many pencils as you want to eat. To Tina Liu, permission to kill Luke and John. To Ha-il Son, compensation for your messenger duties. To Daniel Vardy, my superior NBA knowledge (you really need it). To Camron Butler, a normal sleep schedule. To Mehul Patnam, a better insulting nickname than "Mefool." And finally to everyone, I leave the common sense to walk on the right side of the stairwells (as if hallway traffic isn't bad enough). Shoutout to Mr. Sutton and Mr. Stone for being the funniest teachers ever. I'm gonna miss your classes the most. Stay classy, Uni. I'm out!

Zina gets the title of oldest Yankee Ridger, and Big Mags gets an award for sweetest sophomore I know. To all those I've come to know through WILL, I leave you a great rest of your Uni careers, you all deserve it. Au club de français, je laisse beaucoup plus de desserts, jeux, et vocabulaire (or at least the desire to put that through Google Translate and understand what I just said). Now for the freshmen. To Tintin, all the cookies you can eat, and a high, squeaky "HI MARTIN." Alex gets a report card full of A's. Livlers, many more pun-filled yee-ars at Uni, and the ability to make a rock sit on the ledge of Uni. The Smizzies get giggles, Harmen gets Indominus-rekt, and Lili gets funny bus conversations. To Cedric, rocket science, and to Victoria, the Science Olympiad legacy, the violin section, and success in everything you attempt. Finally, to my brother Lawrence (aka Mr. Bobes), I leave three years of fame and fortune, and Mom's many ham sandwiches. A million thank-you's to all of my teachers, you've made my five years at Uni fly by faster than I could have imagined. Au revoir à tous.

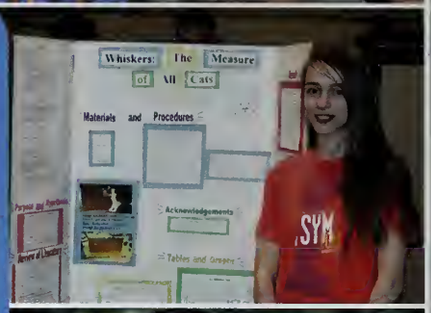
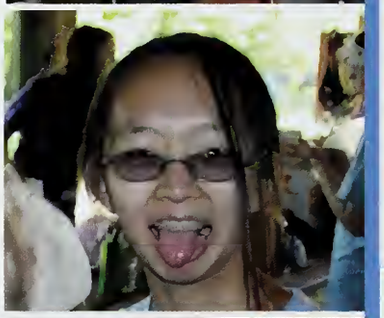
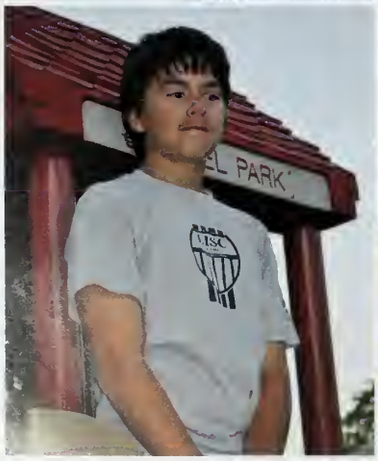
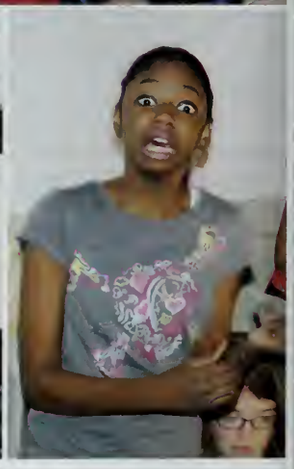
SUBBIE

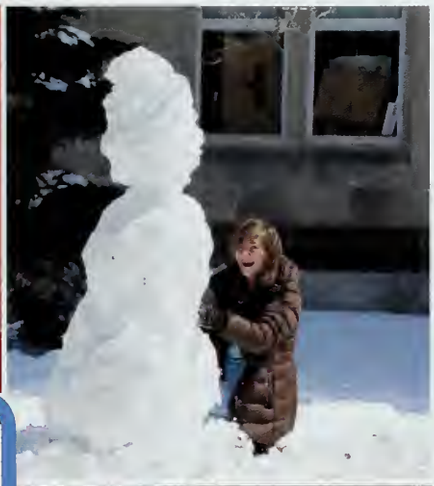
We come in as the biggest class in Uni history, forcing them to install new lockers. Ms. C, Fing, Karen, and Sensei join us. Happy 90th Uni! We write letters to try and get Uni money. Rayburn is shocked by Aarthi's reading selection. Subbie Retreat at Crystal Lake. Jonah gets stuck in a locker. We mistake a cockroach trap for a bomb. Herman the Monkey is our class mascot, until he gets hung in the stairwell. We manage to get Uni banned from Siebel and DCL. Homecoming leads to guest dance forms. Most of us get kicked out of subbie science. We get kicked off of the third floor, and then the first floor. Katie wins Halloween contest with prox card costume. Last Turkey Trot dance. 17-page science test, with 8 pages of extra credit. Kovacs leaves mid-year. Minecraft is the rage. Subbie science trip to Starved Rock, where our "geologist" turns out to be a geographer. Oral history project on veterans. We all fail our proto-wikis. Science fair fiasco. Gravity is the force of gravity upon an object. We run in the last Twin City Twosome. Andrew Cerezo microwaves a metal pot, and leaves us at the end of the year. Ms. C and Senora Finch can't deal with us any longer, and leave Uni.

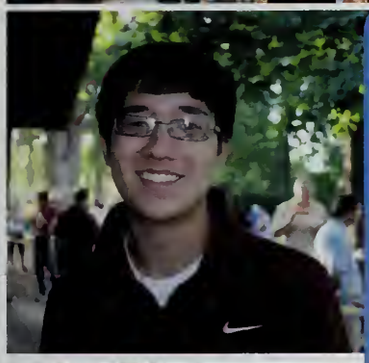






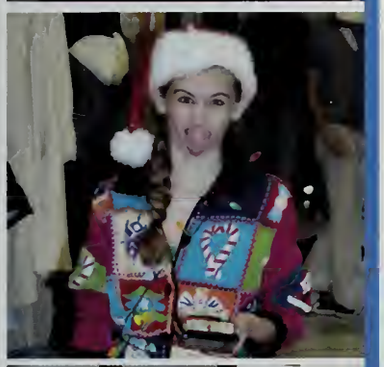


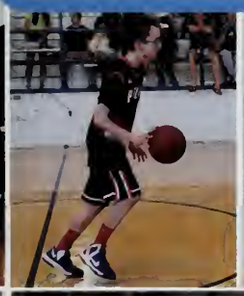


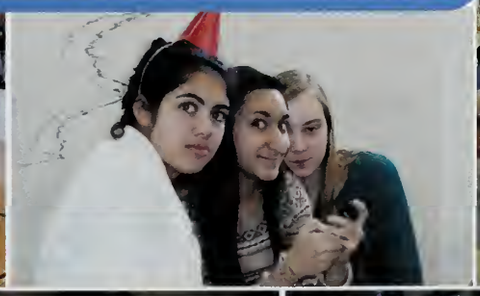


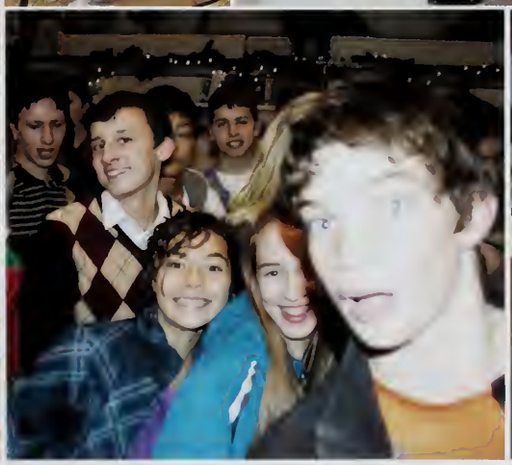
FRESHMAN

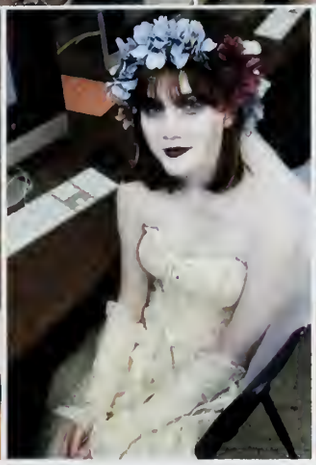
Benny and Andrew disappear over the summer, but we get Ben and Anna. Mr. Leff comes to Uni, and teaches freshman history. Wanda is our new Spanish teacher, until she gets replaced by Juan, making Michael want to move back to Canada. Even gets the FBI called in on Katie and Luie over an Airbus purchase. Michael drinks what he thought was Gatorade. Boys soccer places second in state, but are champions according to Warren G. Cracked starts parking on campus. Mr. Bergandine wows us all with his chemistry magic at the winter party. We all buy Girl Scout cookies from Beth. House of the Blind, shadow bags, and a fart on stage. Rajlich Manifesto. An assembly for Dr. Ned Goldwasser leads to a struggle for the mic. We become the Class of Swag with our matching shirts. Snow day makes spring break a day longer. We spend an entire quarter working on one English project, vaguely related to the book we had read. We finally have a class movie night. Uni Boys Tennis team becomes a thing. First Not Your Average Joe 5K. MJ defeats George in a game of one-on-one. Aidan leaves at the end of the year. MJ hosts the first annual end-of-the-year party at Rajlich World. #teamuni





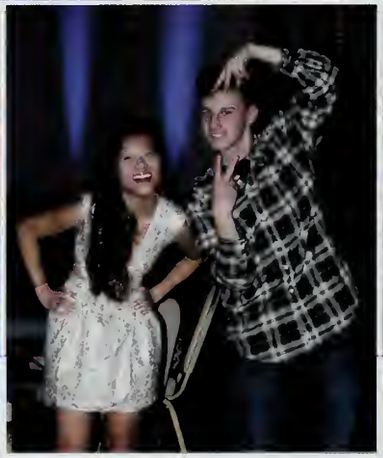


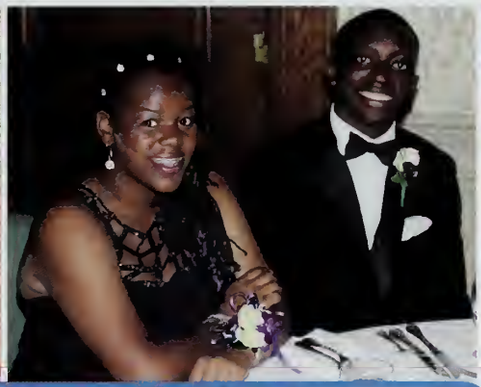


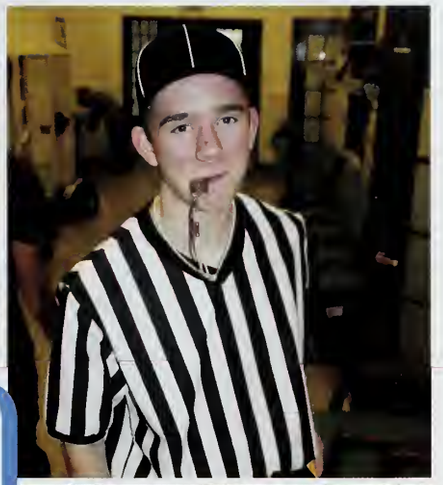


SOPHOMORE

Sushrut joins us for sophomore year. Warren G promises us the best year ever, and then leaves. Jack and Neil have an extra day of Thanksgiving break. We break the tug-of-war rope at the Spirit Assembly and get cheated out of another win. Girls swim team wins sectionals. Katie Tender wins Halloween costume contest as a "chicken Tender". Somebody pees on our front entrance during Unofficial. Flowcharts. The entire class sits on three couches during Uni Periods. "I Wanna Be in the Cavalry" becomes our new favorite song– or our least favorite. We are introduced to Yams. We're Linder's last sophomore English class. MJ gains 30 lbs on a diet of Mountain Dew and Zebra Cakes, funded by selling two liters. Most of us make mol(e)s for chemistry class. Long-time Uni faculty Sally Walker, Ms. Suslick, and Ms. Harris retire. Coach T serves as interim Assistant Director for Student life before Dr. Radnitzer is hired for the position. Ellen visits the UIUC campus leading to a conspicuous lack of students in class. We lose Maya and Carter, and Priya goes to eat turkey in Turkey. Defeat is not an onion (or an option). We meet Shmeagol the mini goat at Jacobs end of the year party.

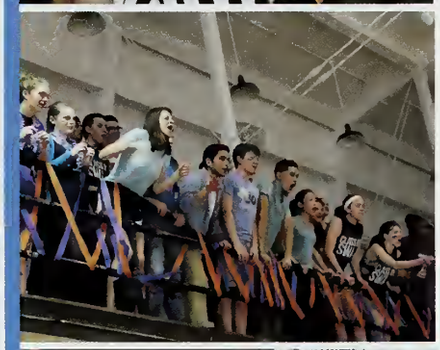






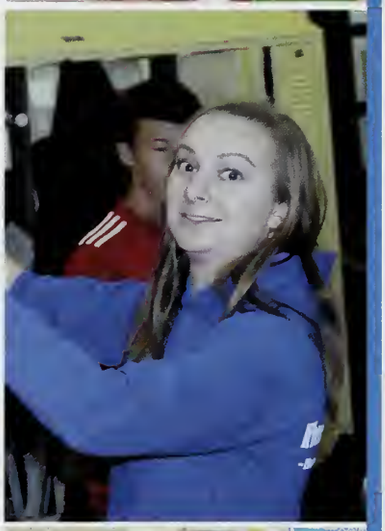
JUNIOR

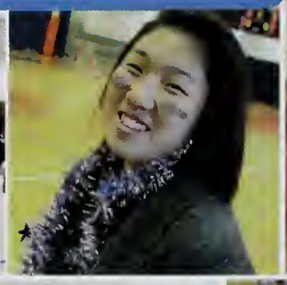
Girls XC places second in state. The girls basketball team goes to Alaska for a tournament, and ties for first. Scholastic bowl wins State and gets their own poster. Girls swim team wins sectionals again. Mr. Bicknell takes over as AD, and makes fitness easy for those lucky enough to get him. The Exploravision Team of Iulianna, Katie, Angela, and Anna wins the regional competition. The ALS ice bucket challenge reaches Uni, which a few lucky faculty members participate in. TV and video games get banned from the lounge leading to the unfortunate rise of the foosball table. American history with Sutton keeps us all educated and entertained. Michael throws an apple back. We do creative projects for our history final. "In Fact" becomes a classic of the genre. Katie Tender wins Halloween costume contest as "50 shades of gray". StudCo starts doing class wide secret Santa. We get robbed of yet another spirit assembly championship, and the tug-of-war rope is still broke- as is Uni. Spring Fling gets called off at the last minute due to broken speakers. Ebola threatens to shut down the school.

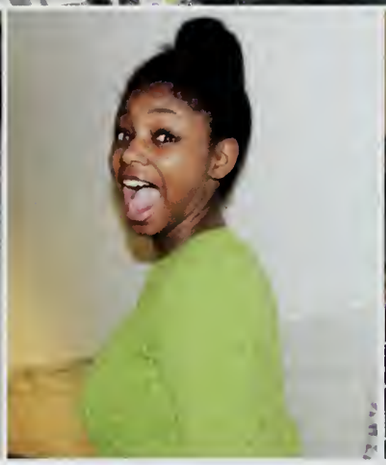


SENIOR

Boys soccer goes back to state for the second time in four years, finishing in fourth place. Girls XC gets second in state, again. We dedicate a new soccer scoreboard to Sally. The volleyball team finally gets spandex and win a regional game. We all apply to college and Katie Tender scares us all at the Halloween costume contest as the Common App, and wins again. We throw an unaffiliated Homecoming, which raises $1000, and lowers the spirits of those who attended. (Almost) all of us finish Consumer Ec the day before it's due. New tug-of-war rope, and we win the Spirit Week assembly- for real this time. Uni is still broke, but we get a fancy new 106 North. Foosball table destroyed in freak accident. Lydia misses half the Monday's in the school year. Our last Agora Days/Habitat Trip. Girls basketball makes a late season run, beating Judah twice and placing 2nd in conference. "Dewing Dew" is robbed of an Oscar (for best documentary) by Amy. Boys basketball wins conference for the second straight year. Our awesome class T-shirts are replaced with awesomer ones. We have Unofficial off this year, making it "safer" for us. We decide what we want to do next year. Senior handprints. Five years later, we graduate!!!







Class Officers: Kate Ferreira (Vice President), Sarah Lee (Secretary/Treasurer), Claire Dickerson (President)

Chris, we are so very proud of you. You are an outstanding young man and we are fortunate to call you our son. We wish you the very best in the future.

Chris is our last child to leave for college. We would like to thank UNI High for the great year!

2016 YEARBOOK DEDICATION

HUE & MATH HOUSES

Most years, the yearbook staff dedicates the book towards a faculty member leaving us who has made a profound impact on the studen of Uni over their time here. This year, however, we thought it would be fitting to dedicate our texts not to a retiring faculty members, b to the Hue and Math Houses, who have served as the humble, dilapidated abodes for much of our faculty for many past years. Despi their tight confines, asbestos, and holes in the bathroom floor, these buildings have served a crucial role to Uni, and they will undoubted be missed once they are demolished over the summer. Numerous students met with teachers or revised math exams in the hallowed ha of these buildings, until they were deemed dangerous, and off-limits to students for this school year. Despite this, the buildings' profour impact will be unable to be recognized fully until they're gone, as teachers and students scramble for office and meeting space. Tha you for your service, Hue and Math House. You will be missed for the most part.
